Why Copper?

The price of copper is stable and poised to rise on the back of its use in various industries post-COVID, especially the EV (electric vehicle) sector, where four times more copper is used than in the production of traditional automobiles. This one industry alone will propel the demand for copper for years to come as the world transitions to EVs.

Copper is a mineral and an element essential to our everyday lives. It is a major industrial metal because of its high ductility, malleability, thermal and electrical conductivity and resistance to corrosion. It is an essential nutrient in our daily diet and its antimicrobial property is becoming increasingly important to the prevention of infection. It ranks third after iron and aluminum in terms of quantities consumed in the USA.

Our Mines in South America – Chile

In 2000, the production of Chile represented 34.7% of world copper mining

The degree of copper mineralization in Chile has no equal around the world. Indeed, Chile is home to some of the world's largest, better known copper mines.

We have over 5,000 hectares of Gold, Silver & Copper mines here.

Our Next Destination – Philippines

Kryptk Pacific Minerals

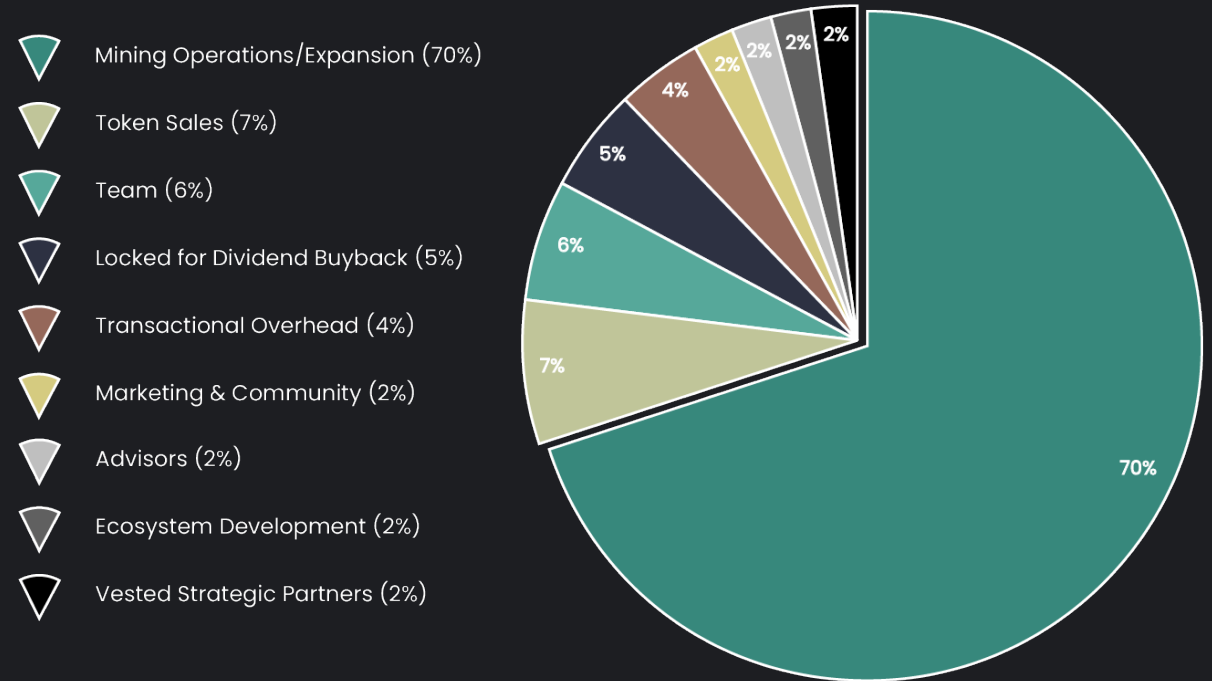

In partnership with resources companies and networks in the Philippines, several copper and iron ore mines and processing facilities have been identified.

Given the high demand and recent market highs in Copper and upward price swings in iron ore, the initial focus will be on these two elements, which are critical to the production of new and advanced technologies.
